ABOUT CANADA HISTORIC PLACES DAYS

Canada Historic Places Days marks a summer celebration that profiles and promotes Canada's historic places from coast-to-coast. This year, while the doors of many historic places remain closed, we are encouraging Canadians to connect with their country's diverse heritage online. Our virtual festivities are set to kick off on July 3rd and will continue through to the end of July. In recognition of the extended timeline, we have changed the name from Canada Historic Places Day to Canada Historic Places Days. A month of activities will provide Canadians more opportunities to get involved and stay engaged!

#HistoricPlacesDays is all about increasing visitation to historic places, virtual and otherwise. Not only does it enrich the lives of visitors young and old, it opens the door to discovering new places. We hope that towns and cities embrace #HistoricPlacesDays and coordinate efforts to tie events together that will enhance the experience of visitors. Hundreds of historic places will participate this year enjoying the benefits of a national advertising campaign.

Harnessing the power of virtual - With the on-going COVID-19 pandemic, many historic places remain closed this year; however, a number of sites have responded with a range of new online initiatives to keep their doors virtually 'open' to visitors, so they can continue to serve their communities in new ways. Social media is an effective marketing tool that can be used to strengthen and build your community, create compelling conversations, and get feedback about your audience's wants and needs. In these unprecedented times, it is important to listen to your audience and be open to change. Consider how you can use this opportunity to tell the diverse stories of your site and include new voices in your activities.

1) PROMOTION TOOLKIT

Historic places are special. They help us truly immerse ourselves in Canada's history. When communicating about Canada Historic Places Days, it's important to share why you believe your historic place is important and what the celebration means to you! This is the first step in engaging the public. We believe that each historic place in Canada has a story to be shared, and Canada Historic Places Days gives you an opportunity to share that story.

✿ Register & add your event to our website:

Have you registered for Canada Historic Places Days? Make sure that you RSVP to this year's celebration by creating/signing into your account on our website (Historic Places Days - Every Place A Story) and clicking "OPT-IN TO 2021." Once that step is complete, you can add an event by following the prompts and filling out our form. Make sure to include details such as where visitors can register for the event and specify whether this will be taking place virtually or in person depending on your local public health guidelines.

✿ Arrange community media opportunities:

Do you have a local newspaper, radio station, or television station? These are all media outlets that can potentially help you get the word out about your participation in Canada Historic Places Days. If you're not sure who to contact, start with the Managing or Assignment Editor of a media outlet. These are people who assign stories to reporters and decide what will be published or/and aired. Most outlets list full contact information for their staff on their websites. If you are hosting an event specifically for Canada #HistoricPlacesDays, be sure to mention that in your email or phone call to the editor.

✿ Consider good old-fashioned advertising:

In small communities, sometimes old-fashioned advertising works best. Word of mouth or posters hung up on bulletin boards can be effective. Tell your friends and neighbours about Canada Historic Places Days and urge them to pass the news along. If you're interested in using posters, we have provided PDF versions of official Canada Historic Places Days posters on Tools & Resources - Historic Places Days.
